ARBITRATION PACT IS MADE

Strikers and Street Car Company Agree to Leave Settlement to State Utility Commission.

TO RESUME WORK TONIGHT

Decision is to be Returned in Thirty Days—Interurbans to Run
Into the City.

(Special to the Daily Republican.)

Indianapolis, Ind., November 7.

Street cars will be operated over the city lines of Indianapolis tonight and interurban service into Indianapolis will be resumed with the resumption of service on the city lines following an agreement today to arbitrate the differences between the strikers and the Indianapolis Traction and Terminal company.

Robert I. Todd, president of the company, today finally accepted the offer of the striking car men to leave the question to the public service commission of Indiana for settlement.

The two thousand state militiamen will return to their homes tonight without having done strike duty. They were called out by Governor Ralston yesterday by secret dispatches and began arriving here early last night. The last of the troops came in early this morning.

The arbitration pact does not involve a recognition of the Amalgamated Association and Street and Electric Railway Trainmen, whose organizers incited the strike here and caused a walk out last Friday night at eleven o'clock.

The arbitration agreement calls for a decision from the public utility commission within the next thirty days and for the strikers to return to their regular duties tonight.

The public utilities commission is composed of three Democrats and three Republicans appointed by Governor Ralston.

The proposal for arbitration through the public service commission was presented by President Beatty of the Central Labor Union, Indianapolis.

It is presumed that no grievances of the interurban car men will have to be settled, because there apparently are none since they did not go on a strike.

A nine pound boy was born to the wife of Paul Harris this morning at their home northeast of the city.

ASKS FOR A NEW TRIAL

The Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton Railroad company, Thursday, filed a motion in the Shelby circuit court, asking for a retrial of the case of Carl Gross against it, trial of which was held there some time ago, and resulted in the jury returning a verdict of three thousand dollars for the plaintiff. The plaintiff has asked for judgment on the verdict.

WILLIE SCOTT IS SENT TO PRISON

Enters Plea of Guilty to Obstructing Railway and Must Serve Two to Fourteen Years.

TAKEN TO JEFFERSONVILLE

Willie Scott, who was arrested last Saturday for placing obstructions on the Pennsylvania railway, was arraigned before Judge Megee late yesterday afternoon and entered a plea of guilty to the charge. Scott was sentenced to serve from two to four years in the state reformatory at Jeffersonville and was taken there this morning by Sheriff Bebout.

Scott, who is twenty-four years old, has been employed by Willie Jones, southwest of the city for some time. A little over a week ago the section men on the railroad found several large stones placed on the track and a wreck surely would have resulted had they not been removed. Scott told the officers that the sectionmen had been tormenting him and that he placed the stones on the track to get even with them. Scott took his sentence very hard and broke down and cried after Judge Megee imposed the sentence. In a statement to Prosecutor Smith, Scott said he was subject to epilepsy.

THRIVING AREA IN RUSHVILLE

Condition Reflected by Scarcity of Desirable Rental Property in The City.

FOUNDRY WANTS TO LOCATE

Need of Commercial Club is Seen
Every Day. Vote Shows Rushville is Growing.

That Rushville is enjoying an area of prosperity is reflected by the fact that rental property is a very scarce quantity just now. There is said not to have been in years such a dearth of desirable houses to rent in Rushville.

All of the factories are employing their full quota of men and the industrial future of Rushville looks very bright. This is a striking contrast to contradictions in some other Indiana cities where factories have been closed and workmen are idle.

"I never remember a time in Rushville," said a business man this morning, "when there were so few desirable houses to rent. They just can't be found, that's all. Almost every house that any man would care to take his family into is already rented."

It is known to be the case that several men who have moved to Rushville lately have been unable to rent homes. They have searched the city vigilantly, but their efforts have not been very productive. A few days ago a businessman inserted a "for rent" advertisement in the newspapers and received sixty applications after the ad. had been inserted only once.

That the city is growing is revealed by the large vote which was cast here in the election last Tuesday. A total of 1,478 votes were cast and 1,638 voters in the city are shown by the party poll books.

This can mean but one thing, and that is the population is far above the number given by the last census three years ago, which was a few below five thousand. It is very conservative to estimate that there are an average of four people to the family. Multiply this by the number of voters on the poll books and the result is 7,752. There seems to be very little doubt that the population of Rushville is approximately seven thousand.

It is understood that a foundry of good repute with excellent prospects for increasing its output and number of employes is seeking a new location and might come to Rushville. According to advices, this concern is not seeking a bonus of any sort. It will even buy its own site, once it decided where it desires to locate. A little effort on the part of the citizens of Rushville might bring it to this city.

This brings to mind the fact that there is no organization of the commercial interests of the city. There was once upon a time a Retail Merchants association which has outlived its usefulness and there seems a very imperative necessity of organizing the industrial interests of the city at once before any more opportunities for improvement have to be refused because there is no official body to look after offers.

There is a well defined opinion among business and professional men that steps should be taken at once to form a commercial club that will look after and have the welfare of the city at heart. It is believed that the launching of such an organization just at this time would be very popular with all business, professional and other men who own property here but have no business relations.

JOHN JORDAN IS "FIRED" BY KELLEY

Street Cleaner is Said to Have Been "Canned" Because he Voted Republican Ticket.

TOLD TO GO BACK TO WORK

John Jordan, employed along with John Singer by the council to sweep the brick streets in the business district, was "fired" this morning by Street Commissioner John Kelley. Jordan is said to have voted the Republican ticket at the election Tuesday and this did not rest well with the Democratic boss. Early this morning Jordan was seen by the street commissioner and in very plain language was "canned." Kelley made no excuses and all morning Jordan's wagon was stored away in an alley in the business district.

Jordan was employed by the council and was this morning told to go back to work as Kelley was not paying the bills. Ed Kelley is chairman of the street committee and promised to investigate. If he found that Jordan was "fired" for political reasons he promised to put him back to work. Three members of the council told Jordan to go to work and they would see that he was paid.

CITY COUNCIL IN BRIEF SESSION

Met Last Night and Completed Business
Left Over From Tuesday—
Little of Importance.

REPORT OF MAYOR WAS READ

The city council met last night and finished the business left over from the regular meeting of Tuesday night when an early adjournment was taken on account of the election. Nothing of importance was done last night.

The report of Mayor Black was received and ordered placed on file. The mayor reported that he had collected $45 in docket fees and $19 in fines from July 2 to November 3. The money had been paid to the city treasurer. The city treasurer's report for the month of October was read and ordered referred to the finance committee.

City attorney Barrett reported that he had investigated the drain at the west end of Tenth street and found that the city could not help because the water ran over onto the township.

COMMENTS ON LATE CONTEST

Winchester Democrat Sees Real Victory For Kentucky Because Rushville School Was Aroused.

EDUCATED IN GIVING GRACE

Event Started Through Efforts of Walter E. Frazee, Rushville Boy
—Hugh Mauzy Congratulated.

"The great contest is over," says the Democrat of Winchester, Kentucky, in commenting on the recent Bible school event. "After a three months effort in which every point was gallantly contested, the victory goes to the Rushville school by a majority of nine points."

In addition to the long story of the close in the Democrat is a column of notes, most of which are of interest only to Winchester. Included in this column is a congratulatory message from R. C. Prewitt, superintendent of the Winchester school, to Hugh E. Mauzy, superintendent of the Rushville school.

"I heartily congratulate you," says the message, "personally and on behalf of our entire school on the victory you have won in our contest just closed."

"I want to say to you that we have done the very best under the circumstances, also that the contest has been both pleasant and profitable to us. You have built us up and I trust you feel we have benefited you and your school."

"We are going to do our best to hold a large portion of our gain, and I charge you in God's name to do the same."

"Our folks are anxious to see the man who leads the school which has won this victory, and I am authorized, and do most cordially invite you to spend a Sunday with us soon at our expense."

The main story of the close gives a brief history of the contest from its inception. A part of this follows:

BUYING FURS?

A WARNING!

There are more kinds of ways of fooling people about furs than there are animals in America.

There is only one sure protection in fur buying and that is to consult a merchant in whom you have confidence and to rely on his word.

To begin with you can well be prejudiced in favor of the merchants who advertise in live papers like The Daily Republican.

They believe in themselves or they wouldn't advertise.

The newspaper believes in them or it wouldn't print their advertisements.

Before choosing your furs read the advertising carefully. See what your merchants have to say. Weigh their claims and decide for yourself.

But whatever the particular reason or reasons which will govern your choice—the fact that a merchant's confidence and reputation permit him to come straight out in public day after day and ask for your patronage is mighty good evidence in his favor.

Why Not--

Buy your Dry Goods, Underwear, Hosiery, Gloves, Furs, Ladies', Misses' and Children's Suits, Coats, Dresses and Skirts, and your Rugs, Fillers, Linoleums, Matings, and Oil Cloths at our store now.

Honestly, now, isn't it the wiser thing to do, and also the better policy, to purchase these needs from the cleanest stock to be found anywhere, at a smaller price than their real value, than to purchase the other kind anywhere, and at any price.

Take the precaution and slight trouble to visit us before making that purchase, and you will understand the matter as we do and benefit thereby.

CAPITAL IN FEAR OF MARTIAL LAW

Indianapolis Faces a State of Actual War.

TROOPS HOOTED BY POPULACE

Effort to Move, With the Aid of Militiamen, Streetcars Which Were Abandoned a Week Ago Tonight, Is Almost Certain to Provoke Resistance on the Part of the Hot-Headed Element That May Result in Bloodshed.

Indianapolis, Nov. 7.—In connection with the strike that has paralyzed the streetcar and interurban service in this city there are many rumors of other strikes pending. One of the gravest of these rumors has it that the employees of the electric light and power stations may go out at any hour. The power company denies this in a public advertisement, but the rumor persists. Another rumor has it that the bakers are preparing to go on a strike tomorrow.

Indianapolis, Nov. 7.—Two thousand members of the Indiana national guard are mobilized here, prepared to take charge of the strike situation and enable the Traction and Terminal company to run its cars. Governor Ralston, who ordered the troops here by special trains, is being flooded with protests from labor leaders and with letters of commendation from commercial circles, and asserts that the laws must be respected and order maintained at any cost.

The troops will be distributed along all the car lines and will keep off the streets all persons who are inclined to make trouble. Labor leaders bitterly denounce this action and declare there was no necessity for calling out the troops.

A meeting of organized labor was held on the statehouse lawn to protest under the very nose of the governor against his action. Several labor leaders and their attorneys made speeches and Governor Ralston was seated in his office, listening to what was said. After much solicitation he went out on the steps in front of the statehouse and addressed the crowd. He said he had taken an oath last January to enforce the laws of the state and was determined to do so.

Trouble is feared and perhaps bloodshed will result from any attempt to run the cars, which may render it necessary for the military arm of the state to take control of the local government. Governor Ralston decided to withhold a proclamation declaring martial law while a new effort was being made to effect a reconciliation between the striking car men and the streetcar and interurban companies. It is expected that a declaration of martial law will be made unless developments show there is a possibility of a settlement being effected. The troops are quartered in the basement of the statehouse and in the Indianapolis armories, awaiting orders.

Should martial law be declared it will mean that all civil authority will be suspended for the time being and the military authorities will be in supreme command of the city. Even the police and sheriff will be without authority. The orders of the commander of the troops will be the law of the city. If the city is placed under martial law, one of the first steps probably will be to order the saloons closed. Persons may be kept off the streets and prevented from coming into the city if the military authorities so decide.

A heavy guard of soldiers was maintained around the statehouse and the armories last night, but the main body of the troops slept peacefully on the cots that had been provided for them.

It was a restless night the officers and enlisted men of the First infantry spent in the basement of the statehouse. Pickets placed at the mouth of the tunnel which leads to the basement at the north end of the building were surrounded by a mob of several thousand men and boys who hooted at the sentries, spat down upon them, threw cigar stubs at them and wads of tobacco. "Tin soldiers!" was an epithet hurled at the men and there were frequent shouts of "We will spank them and send them back home tomorrow."

CHIEF WITNESSES MISSING

As a Result State Dismisses Case Against Jacob Hess.

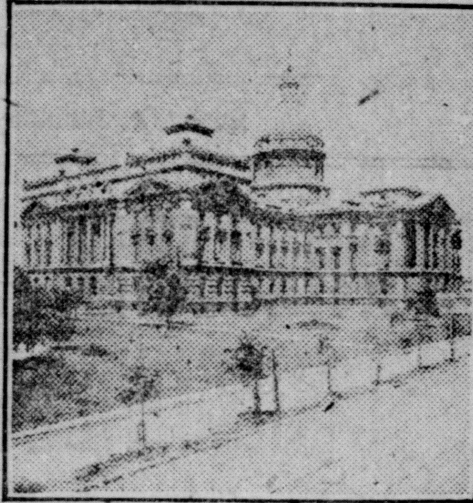

Brazil, Ind., Nov. 7.—The trial of the case against Jacob Hess, the Terre Haute switchman, charged with the murder of Dennis O'Donnell, constable, was begun here, but the charge was dismissed on the motion of Albert Owens of Terre Haute, deputy prosecutor. Two of the important witnesses in the case could not be found, and the prosecutor decided the state would lack evidence to convict. The shooting of O'Donnell occurred about two years ago. In a previous trial the jury disagreed.

HOOSIER CAPITOL

Where State Troops Are Quartered Pending Action.

GARY WEARY OF THE RULE OF SLUGGERS

Action Taken to Teach the Gang a Lesson.

Gary, Ind., Nov. 7.—Coroner Frank W. Smith, M. D., and other leaders of the Citizens' party, including those who were injured on election day, have taken steps to have a special grand jury called for the purpose of indicting Romeo Fitzgerald, who, the coroner and others say, was chief of the Chicago sluggers and gunmen on election day; also for indicting certain members of the Gary police and two constables for their activities on election day.

Dr. Smith, who is now able to be out, said: "This movement is not for political effect, but to show that the law must be respected. We will make few arrests, possibly not more than nine, and we are accordingly reducing our affidavits to a minimum so that we will be there with the evidence. Election intimidation has got to stop in Lake county, and by opening the doors of the penitentiary a lesson will be taught that will long be remembered here."

Attorneys are now busy preparing the mass of evidence and also examining witnesses in preparation for the grand jury. Fitzgerald, who is the chief target, is a real estate man, and was financial manager of Mayor Knott's campaign. He made his headquarters at a south side saloon, the rendezvous of the Chicago plugs. On election day he was in command of the auto "flagship" of the "flying squadron."

Fitzgerald and the sluggers went from precinct to precinct. There will be no indictment of Mayor Knott. R. O. Johnson, mayor-elect, has gone to Monroe, Ind., his father's home, to rest. For more than a month Johnson labored under a heavy strain, as he was guarded day and night by four armed men. Many plots were frustrated to "get" him.

A FIGHT IS DUE IN THE SENATE

President Will Not Accept Currency Bill Changes.

MINORITY RULES COMMITTEE

Three Democrats Straying From the Majority Fold Have Given the Republican Members of the Senate Committee on Banking Their Way In Practically Every Proposal They Have Made.

Washington, Nov. 7.—Further sweeping changes in the administration currency bill have been made by the senate committee on banking and currency.

It voted 2 to 1 to strike from the bill the words "or lawful money" wherever they occur, thus making the reserve required to be held under the bill to be solely of gold. Four Democrats voted to retain the words "or lawful money." They were the chairman, Senator Owen, and Senators Hollis, Pomerene and Shafroth. All Republican members of the committee and three Democrats—Senators O'Gorman, Hitchcock and Reed—voted to strike the words from the bill.

The committee made rapid progress with the bill and showed the same disregard for the clearly indicated views of the president it has so far. Chairman Owen summed up the situation thus: "The Republican members of the committee have won on every proposal they have submitted except one clause."

The proposal to which Chairman Owen referred was submitted by Senator Weeks and rejected, 8 to 4. It provided for the issuance of the new currency notes by the banks instead of the government, the treasury department to guarantee the redemption of the notes.

The committee agreed to retain the house provision which authorizes the treasury department to issue the notes and supply them to the banks on proper collateral. The members also went on record by a vote of 7 to 5 in favor of public ownership and public control of the stock of the reserve associations.

By practically a unanimous vote it was agreed that the capitalization of the reserve association shall be an amount equal to 6 per cent of the combined capital and surplus of the banks and Chairman Owen estimates that this will be approximately $106,000,000. Public control of the regional reserve associations is assured by providing that of nine directors for each regional bank, five shall be appointed by the federal reserve board in Washington, which will be appointed by the president, and four by the member banks.

The situation in the senate committee has reached a crisis so far as the administration is concerned, for the two Democrats and the five Republicans acting together have altered the administration bill almost beyond recognition. That President Wilson will not accept the measure that the committee will put up to him has been made clear by senators who have had interviews with the president.

Senator Kern, the leader of the majority in the senate, has sent notices to all absent senators to return to Washington without delay.

The police arrested Joseph Morgan in connection with the suicide. They say Morgan and several others had "dared" Peck to jump and that Peck replied he never "took a dare in his life" and immediately went to the bridge and, climbing to the top of the structure, leaped into the creek.

May Bring Beilis to America.

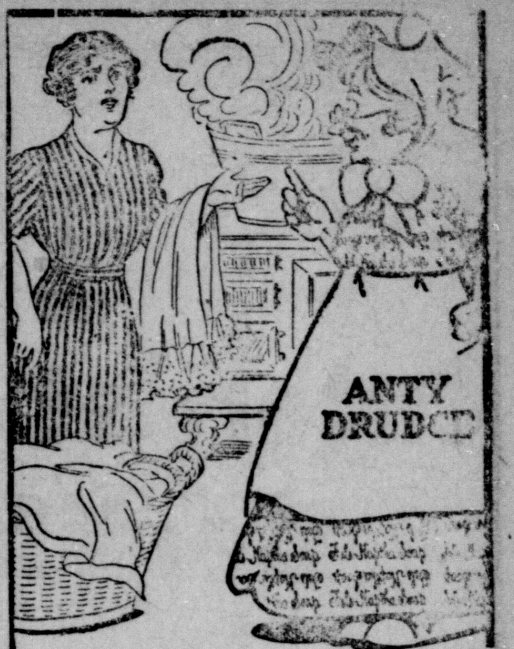

New York, Nov. 7.—In the event of his acquittal, Mendel Beilis, the Jew now on trial in the Russian city of Kiev, charged with the murder of a Christian boy for ritualistic purposes, will be brought to this country in connection with a plan of wealthy Hebrews in New York to crystallize sentiment in America against the treatment of Beilis and other Jews. Anty Drudge—"Of course he didn't mean it, and what do you mean with your washing piled around you this way at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, a heavy boiler on the stove and your kitchen all heated up? It's plain to be seen you don't use Fels-Naptha Soap in cool or lukewarm water."

SEGREGATION POLICY OF ADMINISTRATION

Subject of Bitter Protest On Part of Negroes.

Washington, Nov. 7.—A delegation of five colored men and one woman presented to President Wilson a petition signed by over 10,000 of their race from thirty-eight states, protesting against the segregation policy of the administration. The delegation, which was introduced to the president by Representative Thatcher of Massachusetts, reported that they had been courteously received, that the president had taken the matter under advisement, and that he had stated that the reports in the press of the color segregation had been much exaggerated.

In their protest to the president the delegation quoted a letter written by Mr. Wilson before election, as follows: "It is my earnest wish to see justice done them [the negroes] in every matter, and not mere grudging justice, but justice executed with liberality and cordial good feeling. Every principle of our constitution commands it and our sympathy also make it easy."

The petitioners laid stress particularly on the order of Secretary McAdoo requiring separate eating tables for colored employees and on the segregation in the auditors' rooms of the postoffice department, the navy, the bureau of engraving and printing, and elsewhere.

RUN-DOWN WOMEN

Find Health in a Simple Tonic.

How many women do you know who are perfectly well, strong and healthy as a woman should be? They may not be sick enough to lie in bed—but they are run-down, thin, nervous, tired and demoralized.

Women are so active nowadays, and so much is expected of them, that they constantly overdo and suffer from headache, backache, nervousness and kindred ills.

Such women need Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron tonic without oil which will create an appetite, tone up the digestive organs, make pure blood and create strength.

Mrs. Walter Price, Biloxi, Miss., says: "I was in a run-down condition for months, I had taken several medicines but they seemed to do me no good. Finally Vinol was recommended, and from the first bottle I began to improve until I am strong and well as ever."

Try a bottle of Vinol with the understanding that your money will be returned if it does not help you. F. B. Johnson, Druggists, Rushville, Ind.

A Valuable Suggestion

Important To Everyone

It is now conceded by physicians that the kidneys should have more attention as they control the other organs to a remarkable degree and do a tremendous amount of work in removing the poisons and waste matter from the system by filtering the blood.

During the winter months, especially, when we live an indoor life, the kidneys should receive some assistance when needed, as we take less exercise, drink less water and often eat more rich, heavy food, thereby forcing the kidneys to do more work than Nature intended. Evidence of kidney trouble, such as lame back, annoying bladder troubles, smarting or burning, brick-dust or sediment, sallow complexion, rheumatism, maybe weak or irregular heart action, warns you that your kidneys require help immediately to avoid more serious trouble.

Many physicians claim that an herbal medicine containing no minerals or opiates has the most healing influence. An ideal herbal compound that has had most remarkable success as a kidney and bladder remedy is Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by Parcels Post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention the Rushville Daily Republican.

PETITION NOT LIKELY TO REACH THE CZAR

State Department Declines to Act In Beilis Case.

Washington, Nov. 7.—Addressed to the czar of all the Russias a remarkable petition has been presented to the state department. It was signed by about thirty-five of the leading clergymen and officials of Christian denominations in the United States and protested against the ritual murder trial of Mendel Beilis, the Jew, at Kiev. This extraordinary document, signed by such men as Cardinal Farley, Bishop Greer of the Episcopal church, the Rev. Dr. Willis F. Manning, rector of Trinity church; Bishop Scarborough of New Jersey, and many other officials of Christian denominations, prays the czar to avert a grave peril and forestall the possibility of an imposition of injustice on the entire Jewish people. The petitioners ask the czar to confirm the ukase of his ancestor, Alexander I., who sought to destroy for all time the imputation that the Jews require Christian blood for ritual purposes.

This petition was presented to the state department with a request that it be transmitted to the czar. Secretary Bryan and other officials of the department considered the matter for some time, but finally decided that the department could not act in this matter. The representative of the petitioners was informed that the Russian government had taken no action in the case.

The petition then was returned by the state department, but later was sent by the petitioners to the Russian embassy. What disposition the Russian ambassador will make of the document was not disclosed, but it is doubtful if he will transmit it to the czar.

Sentiment and Money.

One of our exchanges told recently of an incident that seemed to carry with it an unconscious cry against the hardening process that life in large cities evolves. A man of middle age was fatally stricken. Among relatives summoned was a young brother. This man had left the home town many years previously to seek a career in a large city and had never been back. The night of his arrival home the stricken brother calmly announced the morning following that he was sorry he could not remain for the funeral, but professional duties made it necessary for his immediate return to the city. The first train that morning took him back.

In a way the incident is unimportant and in another way it is important. The funeral took place and the presence of the younger brother for any material reason was quite unnecessary; he was not missed. However, the strangeness of his action could not help but cause comment. Relatives who had never gone to the city to seek careers and still retained a spirit of brotherly love in their hearts wondered how anyone could be so indifferent. They could not analyze the action of the brother who hurried back.

In commenting upon his decision to return without attending the funeral of his older brother, relatives recalled the days of boyhood of the two; incidents in their "Days of Real Sport;" how they had often fought over the biggest piece of pie that mother had made; how hundreds of times they had fished, hunted or skated together; how they had been known to band their strength in order to trim the new teacher, and how often the older brother had taken a licking from their father in order to shield the younger brother—the one who had to hasten back.

The mother had died many years ago, believing her boys to be the best and brightest two in the world, but little did she dream that sometime one of her boys would become so pre-occupied with material things that he could not spare a few hours in order to be present at a time when the other boy was being laid away.

We frequently hear of the indifference of the city resident, but we never have thought that a city could harden any heart in a manner like that. Had the mother been laid away at this time instead of the brother no doubt the younger brother would have acted in the same manner. He would have been compelled to hasten back. Here seems to be a warning cry to our boys and girls for the act of that city resident contains its lesson. If the boys and girls in this city and community who are lured to the city are to become soulless and self-centered in the big, congested and heartless city then there's another reason why they might better stay here at home.

National administration newspapers see in the election of three Democratic governors Tuesday a vindication of President Wilson and his policies when national politics did not enter into the contest, but where national politics and the tariff were really an issue, the Republican candidate was elected. This held true in the third congressional district in Massachusetts, while the whole state ticket was Democratic. There the tariff and currency bill were issues and the Democratic candidate was defeated by the Republican even though there was in the race a Progressive candidate, who ran a poor third.

The express companies have kindly accepted the rates fixed by the Interstate Commerce Commission, instead of requiring the commission to make the figures higher.

CAMPAIGN FOR GOOD SEED CORN

Purdue University Extension Department Makes Effort to get Greater Yield Here.

MILLIONS OF BUSHEL NEEDED

Careful Storing of Seed During Year is Urged—Know the Parent Stalk.

Farmers should not depend upon the selection of seed corn from the wagon when it comes to the crib at husking time, for in this way they know nothing of the parent stalk from which the ears come, and this is most important factor in crop growing.

With a view to correcting some practices which have existed for generations among some farmers, the extension department of Purdue university has been co-operating with county agents throughout Indiana in the carrying on of a seed corn campaign. The meetings have met with unusual response on the part of the farmers, and an aggregate of 3,000 has been in attendance at the sixty meetings held during the past few weeks. The farmers have begun to realize that perhaps no one thing is as important in the securing of high class seed corn than that of proper field selection, followed by proper storing during the winter.

Prof. G. I. Christie is highly gratified by the success of the meetings already held and believes they will have a lasting effect on Indiana's agriculture.

"Indiana will require for the 1914 crop more than a million bushels of seed corn," he declares. "If every bushel is to be of high quality, it will be necessary for farmers to give their attention to it before the heavy freezes."

Corn breeding has been experimented within several experiment stations, and it has been demonstrated that corn selected from a certain type of stalk will give larger returns than ears from stalks of other types. The successful type is that having 12 to 14 large leaves, holding the ear 3 1/2 of 4 feet from the ground, in such a position that it is protected from the rays of the hot sun as well as heavy rains. Many stalks have been weakened by disease or injury from other source, and it is not to be expected that the corn from these would be as full of vitality as that from the above mentioned stalk.

The gospel of good storing is receiving more than usual attention this year. Prof. Christie believes that this should be given as much consideration as any other phase of corn growing. He has accordingly outlined the policy of the extension department along these lines, and declares that corn should not be placed in large heaps on a tight floor. At husking time the corn contains a large per cent of moisture, and if not permitted a thorough circulation of air it will often mould and lose its vitality.

"Neither should corn be hung over stored grain or live stock," he adds. "It should be placed in racks or tied up with wire or twine, so that each individual ear is subjected to the proper circulation of air. It should also be placed in a room where it will be protected from rains and snows, so that when it is once dried it can be kept dry."

FURS ARE TO BE LOWER IN PRICE

Discouraging News For Trappers Who Have Been Making Money Here For Several Years.

BIGGEST DECLINE IN YEARS

Overproduction in America is Given as Chief Cause—Cheap Ones From Abroad.

Trappers in Rush county will doubtless not be pleased to hear that there will be a great reduction in the price of furs this season. A number of things combine to bring about this condition. Oneal Brothers, who buy thousands of dollars worth of furs each season, are sending notice to their agents throughout Indiana that the prices paid for pelts will be greatly reduced.

The following published today in the Times at Athens, Michigan, where this business thrives, has the following to say of conditions contributing to the reduction:

It will not be at all gratifying to the trappers, hunters, and fur collectors to learn that they will have to take considerably less money for their furs this season than for the past three or four years, when furs have been ruling so very high, but it is a fact nevertheless, and all articles in the list of raw furs will be lower by from twenty to forty per cent. but at the same time furs will be high enough in comparison to the prices paid eight or ten years ago when muskrat sold for eight to twelve cents each, raccoon at $1.50, mink $2.00, and skunk at $1.00, for best skins.

At the Auction Sales of American raw furs held in London last week all articles declined from 20 per cent. to 40 per cent, and as all of our raw furs are disposed of abroad in this manner, the results of these sales, held quarterly in January, March, June and October, establish the market prices for this country.

The causes for this heavy decline, which is the most severe in recent years are numerous and we have not the space to enumerate them in detail, but the leading cause is an overproduction, which is caused entirely by the fact that our American furs have been too high for manufacturers to use, and consequently they have not entered into consumption, but have been replaced largely by cheaper foreign skins such as Coney, Marmot, Jap Mink, Russian Pony, and several other imported skins which can be purchased at a fraction of the cost that our home furs bring, and in consequence of this fact the bulk of last seasons catch of American furs are still on the market in the raw state when they should have been consumed by the manufacturers long ago.

The price reductions that will no doubt cause our home manufacturers to purchase more freely, as they may be able to dispose of the manufactured article at a profit, which they could not do heretofore, and if so, the "American Lady" will be the benefactor, as our "home grown" furs are much superior to the cheap, trashy fur skins that are almost exclusively used in this country today.

The Get of Winners
Production

This describes the class of cattle we will sell in their coming sale. Messrs Boyd and Dixon have had the most prominent show herds on the big Faircircuit for the past half dozen years, and they have always won their share of the money. They have shown in competition with the largest herds in the country. In the sale will be animals that have won not only blue ribbons this fall, but some that have walked out with championships; and the best part of it all, they were bred at home. All of the animals to be sold were not on the show circuit, yet I saw two at Mr. Boyd's farm who were superior individuals to the ones he had out. This is also true of Mr. Dixon's cattle, yet they did not freshen at the right time.

You can secure at this sale animals that combine the blood of winners with production. The Catalog is ready. Write to

CHAPTER VII.

A Legal Document.

MARY TURNER spent less than an hour in that mysteriously important engagement with Dick Gilder of which she had spoken to Aggie. After separating from the young man she went alone down Broadway, walking the few blocks of distance to Sigismund Harris' office.

Harris regarded his client with an appreciative eye as he bowed in greeting and invited her to a seat.

"I sent your cousin, Miss Agnes Lynch, the release which she is to sign," he explained, "when she gets that money from General Hastings. I wish you'd look it over when you have time. It's all right, I'm sure, but I appreciate your opinion of things, Miss Turner—particularly of legal documents."

"Thank you," Mary said. "And have you heard from them yet?"

"No," the lawyer replied. "I gave them until tomorrow. If I don't hear then I shall start suit at once." Then the lawyer's manner became unusually bland and self satisfied as he opened a drawer of the desk and brought forth a rather formidable appearing document, bearing a most impressive seal.

"You will be glad to know," he went on unctuously, "that I was entirely successful in carrying out that idea of yours as to the injunction. My dear Miss Turner, Portia was a squawking baby compared with you."

"Thank you again," Mary answered as she took the legal paper. For a moment her glance ran over the words of the page.

"It's splendid!" she declared. "Did you have much trouble in getting it?"

"Why, no," he declared. "But at the outset when I made the request the judge just nearly fell off the bench. Then I showed him that Detroit case to which you had drawn my attention, and the upshot of it all was that he gave me what I wanted without a whimper. He couldn't help himself, you know."

That mysterious document with the imposing seal reposed safely in Mary's bag when she returned to the apartment.

Mary had scarcely received from Aggie an account of Cassidy's threatening invasion when the maid announced that Mr. Irwin had called.

"Show him in," Mary directed.

"Who's the gink?" Aggie demanded.

"You ought to know. He's the lawyer retained by General Hastings in the matter of a certain breach of promise suit."

"Hope he's brought the money," Mary ordered. "Leave the room now," Mary ordered. "When I call to you come in, but be sure and leave everything to me. Merely follow my lead. And, Agnes—be very ingenious."

"Oh, I'm wise—I'm wise," Aggie nodded as she hurried out toward her bedroom. "I'll be a snub—surest thing you know!"

Next moment Mary gave a formal greeting to the lawyer who represented the man she planned to mulct effectively.

Irwin lost no time in coming to the point.

"I called in reference to this suit which Miss Agnes Lynch threatens to bring against my client, General Hastings."

"It's not a threat," Mr. Irwin. "The suit will be brought."

"You realize, of course, that this is merely plain blackmail."

"If it's blackmail, Mr. Irwin, why don't you consult the police?"

Mary turned to the maid, who now entered in response to the bell she had sounded a minute before. "Fanny, will you ask Miss Lynch to come in, please?" Then she faced the lawyer again, with an aloofness of manner that was contemptuous. "Really, Mr. Irwin," she drawled, "why don't you take this matter to the police?"

"You know perfectly well," the lawyer said bitterly, "that General Hastings cannot afford such publicity."

"Oh, as for that," Mary suggested evenly, and now there was a trace of flippancy in her fashion of speaking. "I'm sure the police would keep your complaint a secret. Really, you know, Mr. Irwin, I think you had better take your troubles to the police rather than to me. You will get much more sympathy from them."

The lawyer sprang up with an air of sudden determination.

"Very well, I will then," he declared. Mary pushed in his direction the telephone that stood on the table.

"3100 Spring," she remarked encouragingly, "will bring an officer almost immediately." She leaned back in her chair and surveyed the baffled man amusedly.

"Nevertheless," he rejoined, "you know perfectly well that General Hastings never promised to marry this girl, you know?" He broke off as Aggie entered the drawing room.

Now, the girl was demure in seeming almost beyond belief—a childish creature, very fair and dainty, guileless surely, with those untroubled eyes of blue, those softly curving lips of warmest red and the more delicate bloom and the rounded cheeks. There were the charms of innocence and simplicity in her manner as she stopped just within the doorway, whence she regarded Mary with a timid, pleading gaze, her slender little form poised lightly as if for flight.

"Did you want me, dear?" she asked. "Agnes," Mary answered affectionately. "This is Mr. Irwin, who has come to see you in behalf of General Hastings."

"Oh," the girl murmured, her voice quivering a little as the lawyer, after a short nod, dropped again into his seat. "Oh, I'm so frightened!" She hurried, fluttering, to a low stool behind the desk beside Mary's chair, and there she sank down, drooping slightly and catching hold of one of Mary's hands as if in mute pleading for protection.

"Nonsense!" Mary exclaimed soothingly. "There's really nothing at all to be frightened about, my dear child. You mustn't be afraid. Agnes, Mr. Irwin says that General Hastings did not promise to marry you. Of course you understand, my dear, that under no circumstances must you say anything that isn't strictly true and that

"Oh, I'm so frightened!"

If he did not promise to marry you you have no case—none at all. Now, Agnes, tell me. Did General Hastings promise to marry you?"

"Oh, yes—oh, yes, indeed," Aggie cried falteringly. "And I wish he would. He's such a delightful old gentleman."

The legal representative of the delightful old gentleman scowled disgustingly at this outburst.

"Was that promise made in writing?"

"No," Aggie answered gushingly.

"But all his letters were in writing, you know. Such wonderful letters! So tender and so—er—interesting!"

"Yes, yes, I dare say," Irwin agreed hastily, with some evidences of chagrin.

"But you're quite sure, Agnes," Mary questioned gently, "that General Hastings did promise to marry you?"

"Oh, yes," Aggie declared tensely.

"Why, I would swear to it." The timid eyes, so appealing in their soft luster, went first to Mary, then gazed trustfully into those of the routed attorney.

"We're beaten," he confessed dejectedly, turning his glance toward Mary, whom plainly he regarded as his real adversary in the combat on his client's behalf. "I'm going to be quite frank with you, Miss Turner, quite frank," he stated, with more geniality, though with a very crestfallen air. "We can't afford any scandal, so we're going to settle at your own terms."

He took from his pocket a thick bill case and from this a sheaf of banknotes, which he laid on the desk before Mary, with a little laugh of discomfiture over having been beaten in the contest.

As he did so Aggie thrust forth an avaricious hand, but it was caught and held by Mary before it reached above the top of the desk, and the avaricious gesture passed unobserved by the attorney.

"We can't fight where ladies are concerned," he went on, assuming as best he might contrive a chivalrous tone. "So, if you will just hand over General Hastings' letters, why, here's your money. You have the letters, haven't you?" he demanded abruptly.

Aggie coyly took a thick bundle from its resting place on her rounded bosom. "They never leave me," she said.

"Well, they can leave you now, all right," the lawyer remarked unsympathetically. He reached quickly for ward for the packet, which Aggie extended willingly enough. But it was Mary, who, with a swift movement caught and held it.

"I think," Mary explained tranquilly, "that you had better see our lawyer, Mr. Harris, in reference to this. We women know nothing of such details of business settlement."

"We can't afford any scandal."

"Oh, I see," he said disagreeably, with a frown to indicate his complete sagacity in the premises.

"I thought you would, Mr. Irwin," Mary returned. "If you'll take the money to Mr. Harris Miss Lynch will meet you in his office at 4 o'clock this afternoon, and when her suit for damages for breach of promise has been legally settled out of court, you will get the letters. Good afternoon, Mr. Irwin."

The lawyer made a hurried bow which took in both of the women, and walked quickly toward the door.

"Oh, you forgot your marked money, Mr. Irwin," Mary said.

The lawyer wheeled and stood staring at the speaker with a certain sheepishness of expression that bore witness to the completeness of his discomfiture. Without a word he walked back to the desk, picked up the money and restored it to the bill case.

"Young woman," he said emphatically, "you ought to have been a lawyer." And he took his departure, while Mary smiled in triumph and Aggie sat gazing astonished.

"You've darn near broke my heart," she cried, bouncing up violently, "letting all that money go out of the house. Say, how did you know it was marked?"

"I didn't," Mary replied blandly. "But it was a pretty good guess, wasn't it? Couldn't you see that all he wanted was to get the letters and have us take the marked money? Then, my simple young friend, we would have been arrested very neatly indeed—for blackmail."

"Gee!" she cried. "That would have been fierce! And now?" she questioned apprehensively.

Mary's answer repudiated any possibility of fear.

"And now," she explained contentedly, "the really will go to our lawyer. There he will pay over that same marked money. Then he will get the letters he wants so much. And just because it's a strictly business transaction between two lawyers, with everything done according to legal ethics—"

"And it's actually the same old game!" Aggie mused.

MAY PROVE FATAL

When Will Rushville People Learn
The Importance of It?

Backache is only a simple thing at first;

But if you find 'tis from the kidneys;

That serious kidney troubles may follow;

That dropsy or Bright's disease may be the fatal end,

You will be glad to know the following experience.

'Tis the statement of a Rushville citizen.

Samuel A. Brown, R. R. No. 10, Rushville, Ind., says: "I had a severe attack of backache and it got worse every day. Finally, the trouble got so bad that I could hardly raise my foot above the ground. When I stooped, I thought my back would break. Someone advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills and I got a box. I was very much surprised at the prompt way in which they stopped the trouble. In a few days I was free from pain."

MEXICANS PROPOSE A TRUCE

Threatened Invasion From the North, It Is Said, Has Led to a Movement on the Part of the Various Bands of Rebels to Unite With General Huerta in Repelling Any Advance of the Hated Gringos.

Vera Cruz, Nov. 7.—There is a strong rumor here to the effect that President Huerta either has resigned or has announced his intention of doing so at once. It was strengthened by the hurried departure of John Lind for Mexico City, presumably upon a request from the dictator. Various other rumors are in circulation, one to the effect that Lind goes to carry the final ultimatum from Washington.

Mexico City, Nov. 7.—In response, it is believed, to a message from General Huerta, a message was received at the national palace and made public, proposing, on the part of General Carranza and the Constitutional army, an agreement looking to a temporary truce. No secret was made of the idea that the supposed truce would be for the purpose of joint action in resisting any warlike steps that may be taken by the United States. The capital has accepted the message as authentic and official circles are reported as already busy perfecting initial plans for the meeting of a commission of six, presumably to be held elsewhere than in Mexico City.

Anti-American Bitterness Increasing.

In the wake of Huerta's refusal to retire at the bidding of the United States the papers treat the subject very briefly, their standard apparently being inspired from the national palace. However, the attitude of the public continues unchanged and the anti-American bitterness is increasing steadily. News dispatches from correspondents in northern Mexico quote Venestiano Carranza, rebel chief, as saying that he will not accept the armed aid of the United States, but will unite with the federals, lately fighting him, against the invader. Carranza is reliably reported to have approximately 45,000 men under arms.

Correspondents with the federal army under General Juvenio Robles, campaigning against Emiliano and Eufemio Zapata, in the southern states of Morales and Guerrero, have wired the papers here that the Zapatistas have offered their services and those of their men to the federal commander in case of a foreign war. The Zapata brothers control between 35,000 and 40,000 men, all mounted and all well armed.

Provisional President Huerta has a federal army, widely scattered, but still loyal, of nearly 60,000 trained soldiers, rurales, state police and volunteers. In every town of more than 500 inhabitants in the republic there is at least one company of men which has been drilling for nearly six months following an offer made by all the local officials of the country to provide trained men for the defense of Mexico should a foreign foe invade the boundaries.

ONLY ONE COURSE NOW OPEN

It Is Believed President Will Lay Situation Before Congress.

Washington, Nov. 7.—Washington is deeply interested in unofficial reports received from Mexico City to the effect that President Huerta is determined to reject all of the demands contained in the last communication from the United States government. If President Huerta insists on maintaining a defiant attitude to the insistence of the United States that he and his followers eliminate themselves, only one course apparently will be left for President Wilson to pursue. It is believed that this government has gone too far to draw back and that a rejection by President Huerta of the final demand will result in Mr. Wilson laying the entire Mexican problem before congress.

The state department has not received any official answer from General Huerta. According to the information which reached Washington through outside channels, Huerta is resolved to seat the congress chosen in the recent elections. This congress will, of course, be dominated and controlled by Huerta. Upon it will devolve the duty of declaring whether or not the president's election was null and void, and if it follows that course and makes arrangements for another election, Huerta, it is asserted, will abide by the decision and accept the people's choice at the polls in the new contest.

This intimation from the Mexican president of his willingness to accept the result of a new election is regarded here as merely another play for time and an effort to ward off the danger now threatening through the insistence of the United States government. It has been made plain to President Huerta that the United States will insist on the fulfillment of his pre-election pledges to retire and will be satisfied with nothing less.

Peter Wagner, the marshal of Knightstown, is up against it because he didn't use the handcuffs on "Cooney" Reece, who he was taking around town several months ago in search of a bondsman. Wagner is liable to have to pay a judgment of $250, which was rendered against Reece in circuit court says the New-castle Courier.

Reece was arrested on a paternity complaint made by Mary C. Shaeffer, a 16-year-old girl of Knightstown, and he was taken before a justice of the peace and bound over to circuit court. Wishing time to secure a bondsman he asked Wagner to allow him to go over town and see his friends. He walked into a pool room and Wagner waited. The marshal later discovered that his prisoner had "beat it" and notified Sheriff Kirk to be on the lookout, but nothing has been heard of him since.

The case was heard in circuit court this morning and judgment for $250 was rendered. The payments are to be made as follows. $50 November 15, and $50 every three months thereafter until the full amount is paid.

Under the circumstances the girl will now have to sue Wagner, but as he was no money his bondsmen will have to become defendants in the suit.

Never in all Kentucky was there ever a Bible school to compare with the magnitude of the one assembled at the First Christian church Sunday morning.

There were 1,447 present. The offering was $603.62 and new scholars enrolled 240. It was a sublime and inspiring sight to witness the three great opening exercises going on at one time. The one in the main auditorium consisting approximately six hundred men. Another of women and children completely filled the Sunday school auditorium and a third in the dining room where the little folks were gathered in large numbers absorbingly interested in the exercises appropriate to their years and understanding. After the lesson period the great school came together in the main auditorium and although 150 extra chairs were used, great numbers had to stand.

The great crowd and the magnificent offering both seemed to be invincible, but the report from Rushville read at the close of the sermon showed present 1,558, offering $780, new scholars, 218.

There has probably nothing of a religious nature ever transpired in the history of the two states interested that has a greater effect for good by not only stirring to their very depths the two immediate communities engaged in the effort, but also by inspiring and enthusing the schools of two great states to greater effort than has the contest just closed between the Bible school of the First Christian church of this city with the school of Rushville.

This contest began on the first Sunday in August and the points contested were the greatest per cent. of gain in attendance three points, the greatest per cent of gain in offering two points, the greatest number of new scholars two points and all teachers or regular substitute present one point.

The schools were evenly matched except on the point of offering. On this point the local school had to be a little more than one and half times as the Rushville school's to win.

The contest was inaugurated through the efforts of Walter E. Frazer of Louisville, state Bible school secretary of Kentucky, whose home at one time was at Rushville, while Brother MacNeill was pastor there.

The result that he desired has been accomplished: that the Rushville school be aroused from a long, long lethargy and educated in the grace of giving. After all the Winchester school has won the real victory.

The Retail Merchants' association had in view the embracing of all business and professional men into a commercial body whose prime motive would be to advance the interests of Rushville, but the idea got abroad that the association was a selfish venture with only selfish interests to be carried out, and its period of usefulness has passed. It seems that the time is ripe for a commercial club.

FILE EXPENSE ACCOUNTS

Republican Candidates Spend No Money or Make Promises.

So far three of the men who were candidates during the city campaign have filed a statement of their expense accounts with City Clerk Cauley. The three that have filed their statements are Lewis Sexton and R. F. Scudder, who were elected council-men-at-large, and Oliver C. Brann, councilman-elect from the first ward. Not a penny was spent by any of the men or were any promises made according to the statements. The law compels the candidates to file an expense account within twenty days after the election.

NOT THROUGH COUNTING

Merchants Find There Are More Pony Votes Than Expected.

It was expected that it would be possible to announce the winner in the pony contest today, but this afternoon all of the merchants who gave votes had not finished counting them. It is very likely that they will be able to complete the task by this evening some time and that the result can be given tomorrow. Most of the merchants found it a bigger job than they anticipated.
